BUSINESSES SAVE MILLIONS FOR THE STATE? NV Appeal: Would a 'One-stop shop' for businesses save millions for the state? Friday, 13 February 2009 00:00 Would a 'One-stop shop' for businesses save millions for the state? Assembly Majority Leader John Oceguera, D-North Las Vegas, called on legislative taxation committees Thursday to create a "business portal" to streamline the process of establishing a business in Nevada. He said currently, businesses have to go through several different agencies to set up a new business, incorporating with the Secretary of State's office, filing forms with the Department of Motor Vehicles to register a fleet, to the Department of Employment Training and Rehabilitation for unemployment insurance, Taxation for business licensing and Public Safety for background checks.

"Once you have that paperwork in hand, you would again go through the process at the county and city level," he told a joint meeting of the Senate and Assembly taxation committees.

He said most businesses are honest and go through the current process but that some don't and this "one stop shop" would help find those who aren't registering and paying all the fees and taxes they owe. He said the state is missing nearly $50 million in uncollected taxes.

"This would provide business with an end-to-end solution with the potential to save millions annually," Oceguera said.
